When the Town Planner was first presented to me by the local Publisher, the concept of the calendar grabbed me right away. I use several methods to market my restaurant but always keep looking for other effective ways to get the world out. I think outside the box and the Town Planner certainly does too!

It's a clever idea for marketing. The calendars include a great combination of information that is built around the very community in which it serves. Besides local photography and an eye catching cover, there are local events and important dates right on the calendar. As a mother with children in school, I appreciate the school schedule being right there, hanging on my wall in the kitchen. In fact, the calendar reminded me of an early dismissal that I had forgotten about - I can't be the only one who appreciates this kind of resource. I believe it's this combination of features and information that gives the Town Planner it's place on the kitchen wall throughout the community.

The calendar is used! I hear my customers talk about the calendar in my restaurant and while out and about. The response we have received has been good. We saw an immediate response from our coupons when the calendars were sent out and we continue to see our coupons coming in. I also noticed a boost in business in March when Taco Del Mar was the feature photo.

Denon presented his product and himself well to us. I believe he cares about providing a good resource to the community as well as a valuable tool for businesses to market in. I feel good about our choice to participate in 2015 and look forward to being in 2016.

Overall, I like the Town Planner and would recommend it to other restaurants and businesses considering it. It's a unique product and a great way to keep your business seen in homes throughout our community. If you're considering it for yourself, I believe you will be pleased.
